

Big Cotton Pool a Success.

The movement to form a big pool of one hundred and fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) to loan on cotton warehouse receipts has now been established. The St. Louis and New York bankers have been particularly active in promoting the pool, and along with other promoters, deserve the thanks of the country, and the south in particular. Our exports to foreign countries have been cut nearly in half, so it would have thrown this country into a period of industrial and financial depression to have had the purchasing power of the south so fatally crippled, as would have resulted from its inability to realize on the unsold crop, as more than half our cotton is sold abroad, and that market is largely destroyed by the European war.

Voters, Beware!

Some of you may not like the Herald; some of you may not agree with it on political and other questions, but that is your privilege, and we can still differ and be friends. But there is one thing you and that every one can say for the Herald, and that is this: The Herald has never lied to you, never deceived and never misrepresented. You and every one can say that the Herald has always been open, fair and honest, and that it has always told the truth.

Now, the Hayti Herald believes in honesty and truth in all things, and particularly in politics and elections. The intelligent, honest vote is the foundation of our government, and an intelligent vote is just as vital as an honest vote, and, we hold further, that it is just as great a wrong to fool, deceive or mislead a voter as to buy or steal his vote. Don't you agree with us?

With this we want to warn the good, honest voters of Pemiscot county against an 'eleventh-hour' election scheme contemplated to be pulled off in this county for the purpose of fooling and deceiving the voters.

There is money and designing, politicians behind this scheme, and it will be so smoothly concocted that unless some one has warned you, the trick would not be detected.

The tool contemplated to be used is the famous and well known turncoat and sell-out paper in this city, called the "Critical," imposed upon the people by Chameleon Nutty Walker, the barter of whose editorial space and opinion is his chief stock in trade.

We of course cannot foretell you just what he will publish, but one thing we do know: There is a deal on, and if Chameleon Nutty gets the money he will publish anything the conspirators dictate. It may be about a "political sell-out," "the appointment of election judges," "the county unit," or "the Pemiscot Bank failure." Whatever it may be, it will be bought and paid for by a gang of political crooks to fool and deceive both the democratic and republican voters of this county, and therefore absolutely unreliable. Look out for it and beware!

It is hardly possible that the Hayti Herald can forestall this gigantic scheme, but forewarned is forearmed.

Any reasonable and fair minded person can readily understand the dishonest and unfair motives behind a scheme that must be held back for the last hour, when it is too late for public discussion, contradiction or proof. It may not come, but if it does, BEWARE!

Sixteen Years Ago.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1898.

J. F. Davault at the "Famous" store, was quoting some low prices, such as chairs, per set, $2.25; bedsteads, $1.25; No. 7 cook stoves, $4.90; good flour, per barrel, $4. No such prices now. Cotton was low then, as it is this year, but the prices quoted above will show that it did not take a load of it to buy a barrel of flour or other necessities.

Chris Harris of Pascola was hauling cotton to the Hayti market. He reported Little river and the back country full of water, owing to the drainage ditches being cut in the upper counties. Ditches had not been cut in this county at that time and drainage from above flooded low places.

E. B. Mobley, father of B. C. Mobley, accompanied by Mrs. Sallie Mobley and daughter of Trenton, Tenn., visited Hayti and attended the fair.

Misses Gracie Michie, Ada Lester and Albert Michie of Covington passed through here Thursday morning on their way to the Kennett fair.

This part of the country was receiving more than its share of rain during the fall months, according to the columns of the paper from which this was taken.

Rev. J. H. Peay, Baptist, and Rev. Oscar Rogers, Christian, both of Paragould, Ark., held a debate on Cane Island, Ark.

A great many Hayti people were attending the Kennett fair and the big show at Malden on this date.

Mrs. W. T. Riley and family left for West Plains, where Mr. Riley had located.

Robert Popham had been sick, but was improving.

W. J. Webb announced for prosecuting attorney.

Riley Orton was in town from Braggadocio.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1898.

A. J. Sellers, candidate for prosecuting attorney, and Judge S. P. Williams pulled off a dancing contest in this city, Sellers coming off victor. This furnished a great deal of amusement for the spectators and was reported by "Hayti Democrat" in a half-column article.

Prosecuting Attorney C. B. Faris was looking after legal business here Monday. Since that time Mr. Faris has been judge of this, the 28th judicial circuit, and is now supreme judge.

Mrs. James Bush of Concord died during the week, also Miss Julia Foley, daughter of William Foley, then living near that place.

Benjamin Davis, city attorney of Cape Girardeau, was nominated as republican candidate for judge of this circuit court.

George Dorris was promising to forgive the fellow who stole his watch if he'd only "bring 'er back."

W. W. Tarkington attended to business in the upper end of the county the first of the week.

The late rains were damaging the county thousands of dollars.

Jeff Darnall and Jack Averill were over from Gayoso Sunday.

Ed Davis of Caruthersville was here Monday seeing to business.

To those indebted to me: As bad luck and misfortune have placed me in a position that compels me to collect all notes payable to me when due, I will buy your cotton, corn, hog, cattle, and advance you money to pick your cotton.
